

Renewal of the Editorial Committee: New Editor-in-Chief

I am pleased to inform you that Dr. Vanessa Murad Gutiérrez has been appointed Editor-in-Chief of the Revista Colombiana de Radiología, in a unanimous decision made by the Journal's Board of Directors, the Colombian Association of Radiology and its Scientific Committee.

Dr. Murad is a physician from the Universidad de La Sabana and a radiologist from the Universidad El Bosque with advanced training in women's imaging in the program of the Fundación Santafé de Bogotá. She completed a fellowship in nuclear medicine at Seoul National University Hospital (South Korea) and is currently completing a fellowship in molecular imaging at the University of Toronto.

She has contributed to the Revista Colombiana de Radiología for several years, as a young academic peer in the review of articles and as coordinator of the publication of articles of the Journal in the social networks of the ACR, where she made an attractive summary for publication in English and Spanish with the key images.

Her skills as a researcher have been recognized by the ACR with awards for her oral and poster presentations and by the Revista Colombiana de Radiología as one of the people with the most publications in it.

She is also the author of articles published in international journals, most recently with emphasis on oncology and molecular imaging. In addition, she has experience in quantitative and qualitative research in field work, with excellent knowledge in analysis and database management.

Her skills in the medical publishing field have been employed as an associate editor of the Journal of Medical Clinical Case Reports and as a guest reviewer for Abdominal Radiology and the Korean Journal of Radiology, Nuclear Medicine and Molecular Imaging.

I am intimately familiar with her oral and written communication skills and admire the high spirits and commitment she brings to every project she undertakes. Her young mind is creative and with great capacity to innovate.

The addition of Dr. Vanessa Murad to our editorial group is, without a doubt, an excellent decision that will be fruitful for our publication to continue progressing.

On behalf of the management of the Revista Colombiana de Radiología, I thank her for accepting this position, which represents hard work that we appreciate as a selfless contribution to the radiology education of Colombians.
